Village Pets and The Pet Shop boys

In a quaint village, where cobblestones lie,
Pets of all kinds roam under the sky.
Cats on the rooftops, dogs in the square,
With wagging tails, they dash without a care.

The rabbits hop in the morning mist,
While parakeets chatter, never missed.
Fish in the ponds, so calm and serene,
Their colors vivid, in the sunlight's gleam.

The village pets, they live with zest,

In every nook, they find a nest.

A peaceful bond, with owners' joys,

Much like tunes by the Pet Shop Boys.

Their music floats through the village air,

Bringing beats and rhythms rare.

With synthesizers and voices clear,

They add a soundtrack we hold dear.

So here's to the pets and Pet Shop Boys too,

In harmony, they make life new.

A whimsical pair, this duo we cheer,

In the village, both are dear.
